The Old Oaken Bucket Has Nothing On This. Editor The Citizen: How dear to my heart was that ecstatic moment

When I found that a dollar I'd won by my kick! Not a full-flowing purse of coins earned by hard labor 'Could fill me with joy like that dollar won quick. How ardent I seized it, with hands impecunious, As it to the depths of my empty purse fell! And soon dollar bargains in stores I was hunting, Tight clasping that kick prize my purse liked so well. The nice brand new dollar, the Kick Contest dollar, The Citizen dollar that to my lot fell. Respectfully yours, "HOPE," Box 547.

P. S.—Many thanks for dollar sent. Rest assured 'twill soon be spent.

WHAT DIRECT LEGISLATION MEANS.

Direct legislation means that the people may, over the heads of the Legislature if necessary, initiate good laws, reject bad laws, or recall an unfaithful or incompetent public officer.

Under the initiative, a constitutional amendment or a legislative measure may be proposed directly, on petition signed by eight per cent. of the voters of Oregon.

Under the referendum, any measure passed by the Legislature may be, and on petition signed by five per cent. of the voters must be, submitted to popular vote before it can become a law.

Under the direct primary system, the nomination of candidates for public office is made by direct popular vote; names being placed on the nominating ballot by petition.

Under the recall, any unsatisfactory public servant may be voted out of office at any time by a special election called on petition, signed by twenty-five per cent. of the voters qualified to vote on the question.

Under proportioned representation (which awaits an enabling act) the Legislature is elected from the state at large instead of from single districts, thus insuring each party a representation according to its true numerical strength in the state.

The corrupt-practices act, among other provisions, limits each candidate's election expenses to one-fourth of his salary. It provides that paid advertising matter in the newspapers must be designated as such and bear the name of its author. The state publishes a pamphlet containing the text of each question to be submitted, with such arguments as those interested in any measure may choose to have inserted, at the rate of eighty dollars a page. A copy of this is mailed to every voter in the state.

The local option tax amendment gives each county the privilege of raising its revenue from any subject of taxation that it sees fit to designate, under such general laws as the Legislature may enact.

Forman's tree that is opening. It scents all around. I think everything of it.

"It takes half an hour for the flowers to open. They stay open until tomorrow morning. Just as soon as the Sun gets up, they commence to close. They don't like the Sun."

Mrs. Forman counted sixty-nine buds on the tree. She was surprised that they were in bloom so early this year.

"They generally open about the first of June," she said. "Probably they're earlier this year because we didn't have any frost. They'll last a week or two.

"Later on the leaves will fall and beautiful buds will come. They're just as red as fire. Just as soon as the frost touches them in the Fall they commence to turn."

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

In the spring of 1867 the women of Columbus, Mississippi, strewed with flowers the graves of Federal and Confederate soldiers, buried on the battlefield near that town. The act inspired Francis Miles Finch, an Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals of New York to write the immortal poem given below.

By the flow of the inland river, Whence the fleets of iron have fled, Where the blades of the grave-grass quiver, Asleep are the ranks of the dead: Under the sod, and the dew, Waiting the judgment day— Under the one, the Blue; Under the other, the Gray.

These, in the robings of glory, Those in the gloom of defeat, Each, with the battle-blood gory, In the dusk of Eternity meet— Under the sod, and the dew, Waiting the judgment day— Under the laurel, the Blue; Under the willow, the Gray.

From the silence of sorrowful hours The desolate mourners go, Lovingly laden with flowers, Alike for the friend and the foe. Under the sod and the dew, Waiting the judgment day— Under the roses the Blue; Under the lilies, the Gray.

So with an equal splendor, The morning sun rays fall, With a touch, impartially tender, On the blossoms blooming for all— Under the sod and the dew, Waiting the judgment day— Under the roses the Blue; Under the lilies, the Gray.

So with an equal splendor, The morning sun rays fall, With a touch, impartially tender, On the blossoms blooming for all: Under the sod and the dew, Waiting the judgment day— Broiled with gold, the Blue; Mellowed with gold, the Gray.

So, when the summer callets, On forest, and fields of grain, With an equal murmur falleth, The cooling drip of the rain— Under the sod and the dew, Waiting the judgment day— Wet with the rain, the Blue, Wet with the rain, the Gray.

Sadly, but not with upbraiding, The generous deed was done; In the storms of the years that are fading, No braver battle was won— Under the sod and the dew, Waiting the judgment day; Under the blossoms, the Blue, Under the garlands, the Gray.

No more shall the war cry sever, Or the winding rivers be red; They banish our anger forever When they laurel the graves of our dead—

Under the sod and the dew, Waiting the judgment day; Love and tears for the Blue, Tears and love for the Gray. F. M. FINCH. September, 1867.
